Dream of things

You are about to embark on an all too brief journey into a collective experience, an experience which was shared, together and yet separately, by a relatively small number of people occupying a certain position in time and space and no other. Highlights and lowlights alike were collected, saved, sifted, decided on, and finally presented in this pictorial.

Contained in these pages are celluloid images of friend and foe and stranger, a potpourri of events and a single, smile-remembered experience. Herein you will find aged faces, young faces, faces fresh and alert, expressionless faces, carefree faces, and faces grave beyond their years. Here you will see the face of that girl you knew and thought nothing about until you learned she was going steady, of the boy you admired but couldn't or wouldn't find an excuse to meet, of the person who couldn't wait to leave school and the person loathe to do so, of the straight A student and of the kid who barely pulled D's. And, as always, you'll see the nameless person's face whom you know nothing about, and further, who knows nothing about you.

Many photographs are posed, some are staged, and a few are direct extracts from life. Some are meaningful and some leave you blank, and so you must glean from them what you can; for this book was intended for the collective You, and You, as with almost everything in life, are left to wander through as best you can.

This book is a Time Machine of sorts. It is intended to be the awakener of memories which, years from now, will be sleeping in the past. Those memories are yours, to do with as you will; it is hoped this book will serve its purpose.

Those People

"those people," the Powers That Be,
the molders of people in their image, some a burden, some worshipped, some
merely tolerated,
and some unknown—
the older learners
in our midst . . .

LaBruyere wrote, "Man employs the first part of his life in such a way as to make the last part miserable," and this is certainly true of some people. However, I am convinced that most Chancellors use this important time of their lives to expand their personality horizons, to completely shed their security blankets, and to prepare themselves for lives which will be satisfying and of value to society. I am very optimistic about the kinds of citizens our Chancellors will become and confident that society will benefit from their services.

brand of purgatory ...
close enough to catch whiffs of the elixirs of freedom, yet too far from those vials to reach them ...

... reborn in a new world, from the flames of another; these are the Phoenix People, to whom this human institution is still a way of life — enjoy your stay as best you can, but above all
remember it well ...

Dear Patter

Well, here
is "Captain Dum-Dum" writing to
"Just Me". You
know, I am really
having a hard time
thinking of something to say. (A miracle!!!)
You and I have been friends for 2
years now and we
have really had
a lot of good times
together. I only hope that we can remain
as good of friends for always. You always find something new (?)
to say and were
always when one up
when I'm in a bad mood. We must keep on with this summer. Best
of luck always,
especially with Rick. If you're with some...

If I could go to a far-off Land, where love prevails and Life is grand,
There is no one I know who would better fit the scene,
Than you and your grace which seem so serene.

Lots of luck
Jim Dwyer

Kaleidoscope

... the hodge-podge; the swirling shifting, ever-changing never-returning scenery of a myriad

... of events

.... of places

... of people

now past,

and forgotten but for memories spirited back by these few pages . . .

may take him.
(Mmm.) Anyway,
you better keep
tabs on him when he goes to college
so as to keep him
away from all of
those man-crazy
women.

Best of luck with
semester and always.
Keep in touch
this summer, huh?
Keep swimming!!
(Won't you get
sick of people
telling you that?
I do. That's why I saved it!!)

Love Always,
Linda
-1968-

P.S. Your laugh
doesn't really
sound like a
V.W. van Heli.
